

---

Subject: Re: communication between 2 computers using a socket

Posted by Craig Markwardt on Mon, 19 Jul 2010 19:21:19 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

On Jul 19, 2:14 pm, nata <bernat.puigdomen...@gmail.com> wrote:

> Hi guys,

>

> Is it possible to communicate 2 PCs via a socket ?

> I have an internal network and I just want to make 2 computers > communicate with each other in order to have control for 1 program.

> My initial idea is to open a socket and read and write from these 2 > different computers. Reading the documentation I see "The SOCKET > procedure opens a client-side TCP/IP Internet socket as an IDL file > unit" so I don't know if I can do what I want.

I don't think so. You need a way to have a "listen" socket - i.e. the server side - which IDL does not appear to provide.

Craig

---