I snuck back in. Unfortunately, the trail has the effect of slowing everything way, way down, including one's mental state. Life becomes very simple and deliberate. It's a radical departure from real life.

So that (and a month's worth of e-mail) is making it difficult to get back in the saddle. Plus, there is the added pressure of people expecting interesting stories to come out of this experience.

All I can tell you at the moment is that I am working on it, but I am still struggling to get out of the "Dick and Jane walked, and walked, and walked" mode of storytelling. But, stayed tuned. :-)

Cheers,

David
