I'm probably coming late to the game here regarding unit testing in IDL (I use them in ruby all the time), but the mgunit application put together by Michael Galloy (<http://mgunit.idldev.com>) absolutely rocks!

I've actually gotten a ton of work done this afternoon with some object code refactoring because I didn't have to worry about writing my own laborious tests for the changes I'm making - I simply used mgunit. More productive and stress-free about making changes.

Man, I love it when a plan comes together.... :o)

Thanks Michael!

cheers,
