Hi,

Are exclusive base widgets completely confused under NT 4.0?
I am getting very strange behavior from a widget app which works on our unix boxes (OSF & Solaris), but under NT 4.0 they do not seem to work as advertised. Selecting a new button does not deselect the previously selected button nor does it appear to generate the right event. I have to click on that button again (sometimes after reselecting the previously active button) before the correct event is generated (except that the button now appears to be inactive {ie, no little dot next to it}). What's going on here?

TIA,
