First of all, thanks for all of the suggestions! In the end, I decided to do some experimentation with TVRD to see what it can handle. While I don't have an exact size for all of you, I was able to creatively edit my individual panels to decrease the resolution slightly. I was successfully able to create an image using TVRD with a resolution of 6930x3780. At this size, there is an audible increase in fan-speed in my computer while IDL is humming away. Ah, the sound of success!
