I am involved with a project that is using ENVI and we have noticed that it seems to have a lot of bugs. Also, the documentation advertises functionality that is not always present (v 2.5).

Admittedly we are beginners and we are using functions that are perhaps not its forte' -- mapping in particular -- but for the amount that it costs you would think that it would at least function as advertised. Also, support from RSI is rather weak. Anyone have similar experiences?
