
Subject: Re: Shell startup file not recognized in IDL 8.0 Workbench

Posted by Gray on Wed, 20 Jul 2011 15:45:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Jul 20, 11:33 am, Brian <Daniels...@yahoo.com> wrote:

> Hi All,
>
> I'm upgrading from 7.1 to 8.0, and most things are going smoothly > until I test Coyote Graphic's integration with ImageMagick. IDL 7.1
> Workbench recognized my .bashrc file (where I define $PATH) when I use > Spawn or $ to talk to the shell, but IDL 8.0 does not. This is a > similar issue to the post below, but a wee bit different.
>
> http://groups.google.com/group/comp.lang.idl-pvwave/browse_thread/...
>
> I can print '$ echo $SHELL' and get the same answer from both 7.1 and > 8.0. The $PATH variable is much different, which is why the shell > call can't find ImageMagick or any of my other UNIX packages. In > short, how do I get IDL 8.0 Workbench to use my .bashrc file when > starting the bash shell?
>
> Similarly to the post above, when I start IDL 8.0 from the command > line, the .bashrc is used and everything is golden.
>
> Thanks for your help.
>
> -Brian Daniel

setenv, "PATH=blah/blah/blah:$PATH"
