
Subject: Re: TIMEGEN bug (not the pre-6.4 bug that Fanning describes)

Posted by penteado on Mon, 18 Jul 2011 18:53:19 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Jul 17, 1:22 am, Ed Hyer <ejh...@gmail.com> wrote:

> TIMEGEN manpage says this:

> "Note: If subintervals are provided by MONTHS, DAYS, HOURS, MINUTES, > or SECONDS, then the first element may not be equal to the START time.

> In this case the first element in the returned array will be greater > than or equal to START."

>

> This is not so:

> IDL>

> print,timegen(2,start=julday(7,1,2008,0,0,0),months=[1,7],units='year'),for mat='(C())'

> Tue Jan 01 00:00:00 2008

> Tue Jul 01 00:00:00 2008

I think I am missing something, because I do not see the problem.
