Subject: Re: More Function Graphics Fun!
Posted by David Fanning on Mon, 12 Sep 2011 17:20:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

alx writes:

> I have no answer to your question. I only note that using /NORMAL > instead of /DATA is no more reliable !

Yes, I have noticed in my experimenting that it is possible with either keyword to cause the legend to be positioned outside the window, just by repeatedly resizing the window!

> But you can get something worse with your simple code: without > resizing the window, please push the UNDO button. The legend > disappears, not unexpectedly since that is the last object created in > your plot. But, now, please push the REDO button ... On my screen, the > legend is now partly overrided by a big grey square with a border, > without any possibility to recover it ! Likely, some pointer has been > lost in the operation.

I get the same gray box, but it goes away when I resize the window. Unfortunately, though, only the second line now appears in the legend.

Cheers,

David

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com/
Sepore ma de ni thui. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")