Subject: Re: basic structure question
Posted by penteado on Thu, 13 Oct 2011 22:20:26 GMT

On Oct 13, 7:13 pm, SonicKenking <ywa...@gmail.com> wrote:
> On Oct 14, 9:06 am, Avian <dflat...@gmail.com> wrote:
>
>> Hi - I'm just getting into the nitty gritty of IDL, and had a quick question.
>
>> Is there a way to add an existing structure into another structure as a tag? In other words, to not put it on the same level as the first structure?
>
>> If I have a structure called J that has a zillion tags, and I want to put it into an existing structure called K (which has its own tags), the new structure would be
>
>> K,ktag1,ktag2, J
>>   - J's zillion tags beneath this accessible as K.J.tag1, etc...
>
>> Hope that made some sense.
>
>> Thanks in advance!
>
> a = create_struct(k, 'j', j)

Just note that this is making a new structure (a), not adding into the existing structure (k), as was asked. Structures are static, so no fields can be added, removed or have their types or dimensions changed after definition.