

---

Subject: Re: How 2 access to ubuntu in my office
Posted by Matt Francis on Sun, 11 Dec 2011 21:06:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

If you don't need an X display then PuTTY (<http://www.chiark.greenend.org.uk/~sgtatham/putty/>) is a free and relatively easy to use option for Windows. From memory Ubuntu I think installations by default don't have an ssh server installed. This is a help page for a slightly older Ubuntu install than the most up to date, but it should all still be correct
<https://help.ubuntu.com/10.04/serverguide/C/openssh-server.html>

There may be some trickiness getting into your office machine though, depending on what security is in place at your workplace.

---