Subject: small consulting firm in NM needs an IDL developer
Posted by red cyntrelle on Wed, 25 Apr 2012 16:01:28 GMT

Hi all :

I represent a small consulting firm in Northern New Mexico that will soon be hiring an IDL developer to replace myself, as I am moving out of state (May-June expected time frame). I am seeking interested (and preferably local) programmers on the group here that I could present as potential candidates to the company. This position is for the sole programmer for a (very) small company, and this person would be inheriting my code and need to expand upon it.   We have IDL 7.0 and ENVI 4.5; knowledge of ENVI and basic remote sensing a huge +. GIS know how and a bit of basic ecology also are pluses. This code will also soon need to interface to the web, so Java or Ruby programming is most helpful, too. I will be available to the new hire to give an overview of the existing code and answer questions.

Please contact me via email off the group for further information.
Thanks!