

---

Subject: Re: cgwindow and output file name

Posted by on Wed, 11 Jul 2012 12:09:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Den onsdagen den 11:e juli 2012 kl. 13:53:39 UTC+2 skrev Mats Löfdahl:

> When you use the "Save Window As" functionality in a cgwindow, the default file name is cgwindow.EXT in the current directory, where EXT depends on the format you want.

>

> If you want another file name you can select an existing file name or type in a new name in the popup dialogue. This becomes a bit tedious (and error prone) if you have to do it a lot. I've been looking for a way to specify the file name when creating the window but I can't find anything.

>

> Is there a way to do it?

I am aware of the output keyword to the cg plot commands, but they output directly. This is not what I'm looking for, I just want the default file name to be the one you specify, when you choose to use save your graphics (consisting of several commands) to a file.

---