

---

Subject: Re: Plot Size difference

Posted by [lan\[2\]](#) on Fri, 21 Sep 2012 16:07:39 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

On Friday, September 21, 2012 11:05:46 AM UTC-5, Ian wrote:

> On Friday, September 21, 2012 11:02:34 AM UTC-5, Coyote wrote:

>

>> Ian writes:

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>> I have two plot setups, and from what I can tell, the eps files should come out with plots exactly the same physical size, BUT of course they are not. Can anyone tell if I am missing something simple, or if there is a work around? I believe the first set of code produces plots about 1 square centimeter larger than the second code (for some reason that was not the case earlier this week, they matched nicely).

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>> The different CHARSIZE used in the two plots is affecting the position of the plot (by manipulating the plot margins). You could use a POSITION keyword to >> force the plot into the right place, regardless of the character sizes.

>

>>

>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>> Cheers,

>

>>

>

>>

>

>>

>

>> David

>

>

>

> Thanks David, I just noticed that a second ago.

Its always those little things :)

---