On Friday, September 21, 2012 11:02:34 AM UTC-5, Coyote wrote:
> Ian writes:
>
>
>
>> I have two plot setups, and from what I can tell, the eps files should come out with plots exactly the same physical size, BUT of course they are not. Can anyone tell if I am missing something simple, or if there is a work around? I believe the first set of code produces plots about 1 square centimeter larger than the second code (for some reason that was not the case earlier this week, they matched nicely).
>
>
>
> The different CHARSIZE used in the two plots is affecting the position of the plot (by manipulating the plot margins). You could use a POSITION keyword to > force the plot into the right place, regardless of the character sizes.
>
>
>
>
> Cheers,
>
>
>
> David

Thanks David, I just noticed that a second ago.