
Subject: Re: HASH with case insensitive keys versus a new DICT class

Posted by markb77 on Wed, 12 Dec 2012 16:31:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On 12 Dez., 07:05, Chris Torrence <gorth...@gmail.com> wrote:

> Okay, I'll bite.

>

> I have a specific use case for this, where using a "dynamic" structure would be very helpful. Users have also been asking for dynamic, extendable structures for years.

>

> One more data point: It would take less than a day to make this update. Adding a new widget system would take more than a day.

>

> -Chris

hi Chris,

I see what you mean. Regarding the widget stuff, I don't think IDL necessarily needs a whole new widget system, but modernizing the look and features of the existing widgets would be very welcome.

best,
Mark
