Subject: Re: defining of x_ch_size in !D
Posted by davidf on Mon, 24 Feb 1997 08:00:00 GMT

R. Bauer writes:

> We like to optimize the x_ and y_ch_size in !D.
>
> Where and how can we do this?

I don't think this can be done either. These are set internally by IDL and I don't think they can be changed by the user.

> Why could it be different on difference systems?

This is a question I would really like to know the answer to. You must be working on SGI's Mr. Bauer! :-)

David

David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting
2642 Bradbury Court, Fort Collins, CO 80521
Phone: 970-221-0438   Fax: 970-221-4762
E-Mail: davidf@dfanning.com
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.dfanning.com