
Subject: Re: plotting vs year-month-day

Posted by worth on Wed, 28 Apr 1993 15:47:06 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

dere@cedar.nrl.navy.mil (Ken Dere) writes:

> We have data that we would like to plot as a function of a running > calendar date where the axis will be labeled with the year and month, > with tick marks at the first day of each month. Leap years should be > treated properly. Somebody must know of such a routine. Any > information would be appreciated.

>

> ---

The newest PV-WAVE (v4.?) has an option that does this. It is very easy and works very well.

--

Doug Worth -- worth@acuson.com (worth@sono.sun.com, ..!sun!sono!worth) 415-694-5653

DISCLAIMER:: All thoughts and ideas expressed are mine and not Acusons
Philosophy of Home Repair:: When all else fails....Get a bigger hammer
