Subject: Re: How to hide rois programatically ?
Posted by David Fanning on Tue, 11 Jun 2013 20:22:11 GMT

Leo_sjc writes:

> I want to set a shortcut key to a menu item, and then use a keyboard key to hide rois. I was not able to use "IDLgrROI", lack information of use.
>
> Any tips ?

I usually build a "layer" object (just a container) that I add graphical objects to. When the Draw method of the layer object is called, it first checks to see if its "visible" property is set. If so, it calls the draw methods of the graphical objects inside it. If not, nothing is drawn.
This allows me to turn on and off groups of graphical objects, as I desire.

Cheers,

David

--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.idlcoyote.com/
Sepore ma de ni thue. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")