Subject: Re: Increasing the whitespace between plot axes and the label?
Posted by Matt Francis on Mon, 29 Jul 2013 00:01:08 GMT

> I guess I don't understand how increasing the font size could increase > white space. It seems to me you would need to decrease the font size to > see an increase in white space.
>
>

It looks like there is some kind of scaling going one, as if say IDL leaves a gap between the axis and the label of 10% of the character size. As the character size increases, so does the gap. Something like that seems to be happening, but I have to make the character size ridiculous to get the kind of whitespace desired.

It seems there is no simple solution, which is as I suspected. That's fine, thanks for your help.