On Friday, August 23, 2013 6:18:51 AM UTC-6, Mats Löfdahl wrote:
>
> 1. The name of the subprogram (like $0 in bash)
> 2. The parameters as an array or struct or similar (kind of like $*), preferably including keywords.

We're looking at introducing the equivalent of argc-argv, where argv[0] is the name of the routine and argv[1-n] are the parameters. Ronn Kling suggested that a list would be a good container for this info. How about new intrinsic routines IDL_ARGC and IDL_ARGV?

mp