Subject: Re: A newbie question regarding 3D plotting Posted by David Fanning on Wed, 25 Sep 2013 04:05:55 GMT

mxfong2012@gmail.com writes:

> It would be helpful if you can also show me in your example how to adjust the viewing angle.
That is, it would be great if I can generate a 3-D plot viewed from the North Pole, or from the Sun.

Well, these don't look like 3D plots to me. They look like 2D map projections. Perhaps you are thinking of a polar stereographic projections of the sort shown here:

  http://www.idlcoyote.com/gallery/index.html#POLARWIND

Cheers,

David
--
David Fanning, Ph.D.
Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.
Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: http://www.idlcoyote.com/
Sepore ma de ni thue. ("Perhaps thou speakest truth.")