Hi Matthew - you bet. I'm hoping that someone with a better knowledge of the workings of IDL than I have can chip in. At this point, at least the problem is a bit more constrained. For some reason the ImageMagick 'convert' command generated through the IDL 'spawn' procedure behaves differently than it does when it is issued directly from the shell. I think this points to IDL as the problem (rather than to ImageMagick/ghostscript) but am not sure about that.
