hi everyone,

This is a workbench-related question.

My IDL configuration has gotten into a state where whenever I compile a program containing errors, the "Problems" tab opens up on the left side of the screen, showing a list of warnings and errors found in my code. This is very annoying since it obscures my editor window. I can't find anything in the preferences settings to change this behavior, and this has only started happening recently..

any ideas?

thanks!
Mark
