I very much like David Fannings suggestion of an IDL programmers cooperative writing shareware code. I know that I would pay for good routines (and David's routines are good). The only comment that I would make, being part of a Government research organisation, is that it would be great if there was an easy way to pay, for example by credit card. I think that more people will pay for shareware if it is easy to do so.

Paul.
