
Subject: Re: IDL Help Annoyance

Posted by Haje Korth on Fri, 15 Jan 2016 17:37:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Friday, January 15, 2016 at 12:22:24 PM UTC-5, Haje Korth wrote:

> On Friday, January 15, 2016 at 12:19:49 PM UTC-5, Jeff B wrote:

>> On Friday, January 15, 2016 at 11:09:26 AM UTC-6, Haje Korth wrote:

>>> I am using Google Chrome as my default web browser, which gets invoked when I use the IDL help command. For a while now regular text becomes blue and underlined when I mouseover the webpage. This is high annoying because at that point it is impossible to distinguish the text from the hyper links. has anyone seen this or have a solution.

>>>

>>> Another one of those reasons why one should never ever ever ever ... get rid of the IDL 6.4 help file.

>>

>> Sounds like you're running into the same Chrome issue as others:

>>

>> https://groups.google.com/forum/#!topicsearchin/comp.lang.idl-pvwave/idl\$20chrome/comp.lang.idl-pvwave/hb8KG66deFw > yup that's it. Thanks for the link.

>

Tried to change the external browser from default to Firefox but this does not work. This rings the bell of another long-standing bug, which I swear I had reported before. Grrrrr.....
