If someone were to find a bug that snuck in or an improvement that could be made, does the community have suggestions on how to move on? Maybe David would be willing to assign a few contributors who can approve pull requests, but I wouldn't want separate forks to keep progressing ignorant of each other (of which I am guilty).

I think this is the repository you want to use:

<https://github.com/idl-coyote/coyote>

Let me know if you'd like to be a collaborator or maintainer and I'll talk to Matt Savoie.

Cheers,
