Subject: Non-interactive IDL on Windows NT?

Hello,

One of the items I apparently overlooked while making the switch from Unix to NT was the problem of running IDL in non-interactive mode (NIDL?). I can run a quasi-batch job, something like this:

```
c:\rsi\idl50\idlde "@test_run"
```

But I would like to keep the Idlde window from appearing. Has anyone been able to do this?
