
Subject: Re: CURSOR and draw widgets
Posted by David Bowman on Thu, 20 Jul 2000 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thanks... I should have been able to figure that one out... A clear-cut case of being too close to the problem, too late in the day!
:-)

regards,
david

In article <3977309A.5A8CA7DA@ssec.wisc.edu>, Liam E.Gumley
<Liam.Gumley@ssec.wisc.edu> wrote:

>
> Have you considered using CONVERT_COORD to covert device coordinates to > data (or normal) coordinates?
>
> Cheers,
> Liam.
> <http://cimss.ssec.wisc.edu/~gumley>

--

David Bowman "Smash forehead on keyboard to continue."
Laboratoire Tectonique
Institut de Physique du Globe - Paris
4 Place Jussieu
75252 Paris Cedex 05
France

Subject: Re: CURSOR and draw widgets
Posted by Liam E. Gumley on Thu, 20 Jul 2000 07:00:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

David Bowman wrote:

> Is there any simple way to get the cursor position from a draw > widget in DATA coordinates? For some reason that I don't comprehend, > one is not supposed to use the CURSOR routine with widgets, however > button and tracking events only give device coordinates.

Have you considered using CONVERT_COORD to covert device coordinates to data (or normal) coordinates?

Cheers,
Liam.
<http://cimss.ssec.wisc.edu/~gumley>
