
Subject: Re: IDL on OS X

Posted by Rick Towler on Wed, 24 Jul 2002 16:56:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

This is good news to us x86ers too. Please get all of the bugs out so by the time OS X is released for x86-64 we will have a fast and stable (and accelerated X) version of IDL.

Sure, it is a rumor. But can't we dream?

-r

"Doug Rowland" <rowland@fields.space.umn.edu> wrote in message news:B96430E4.36F9%rowland@fields.space.umn.edu...

> Maybe this isn't news to those lucky people who are beta-testing IDL on OS X, but I was just checking out the RSI website and they included this little > tidbit (from the IDL on Mac OS X FAQ):

>

> Update 7/18/2002: The beta testing program for IDL on Mac OS X based on IDL

> 5.5 has been in full swing for several weeks, and plans are still on track.

> We plan to provide a "pre-release" version for general testing during the

> IDL 5.6 beta period, scheduled to begin in mid-August. The Mac OS X version > of IDL will be built on IDL 5.6 and is expected to be released as part of > the IDL 5.6 release. Please see the FAQ below for more details about IDL for > Mac OS X.

>

>

> Doug Rowland

> rowland@fields.space.umn.edu

>

>