Folks,

While I am wenging and moaning about IDL projects, I'll just say that I almost always have the project code mirrored by something that looks nearly identical to it in my Code Management System (I use Perforce).

The thought has occurred to me (as it has occurred to others) that it would be WONDERFUL if the IDL project could do the code management task too. (Isn't that part of what a "project" is, after all?)

I'm just saying that if anyone was looking around for a fun project that might make Kodak stock go up, here is one suggestion. :-)

Cheers,

David
