Hi David,

I suggest: ask the secretary in Zurich for the new address:
Secretary: Rita Ott email: rott@geo.unizh.ch <mailto:rott@geo.unizh.ch>

Cheers
Dave

I found this:

Michael.Schaepman@wur.nl

<http://ldap.wau.nl:8888/cn%3dMichael%20Schaepman%2c%20ou%3dGeo-informatiekunde%20en%20Remote%20Sensing%2c%20ou%3ddepartement%20Omgevingswetenschappen%2c%20ou%3dWageningen%20Universiteit%2c%20o%3dWageningen%20UR%2c%20c%3dnl>

Good luck. Is the sabbatical in the Netherlands?

Pepijn.

Hey, I get to help the great Dave Fanning.

I just went through their website and found this. I think it is what you need.

<http://tinyurl.com/2vxut>

Glad to help, marcu

I don't think he is going to be too happy at you publishing his email address on Usenet. Its not good netiquette!

[Long link sniped too]

Take a look at <http://tinyurl.com> for overly long links!

Oh, $%^$5, what a stupid mistake. My most sincere appologies.

I'm not sure how that URL turns into that page, but that is, indeed, what I was looking for. Thanks. You guys are better than Google! :-)

Just go to the root of the link and see the wonders it performs!

(i.e. drop the 2vxut)

No, no David, google `was still my friend!' I just did the following with some of the info you gave,

- 1.) name => got the Swiss bit
- 2.) name Dutch info => Can't remember what I got, was not too useful!
- 3.) then just Dutch uni bit => from there found their homepage and was able to find my way to the English version and then the phone book

Glad to help, but it was just my `friend' as always that deserves the credit. Maybe a tiny bit for me for experienced web searching with said friend!

I'm just sorry I did not get the info to you before the details were posted raw! Oh well, at least two people have had a netiquette lesson today and learnt something!

Slĩ½n, marcu

I like your sense of humour, very similar to my own. The sniped link above should have had a 'd' at the beginning of the input! What you just posted produced.

`Fanning International is a New York City based Search Firm specializing in all levels of information technology, executive management, retail solutions and human resources. Fanning works on retained and contingency searches from coast-to-coast and around the world.'

No IDL there (c;

doh!
That's what I get for typing in the url from memory, instead of copy and pasting it from the browser.

Of course, what I meant to say is:
"For instance, there is some great _employment/human resources_ info at:"
