
Subject: Re: animate loaded images

Posted by David Fanning on Tue, 17 Aug 2004 04:32:51 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Mary T writes:

- > I found several commands that I thought were useful for me in order to
- > load images and see them one after another one as an
- > animation: cw_animate, xinteranimate.
- > However, I see in the examples that the images that are loaded are as
- > vector data.

Huh!? Say, what?

- > I need to load real images for which I don't have the
- > bitmaps.

Uh, what do you have? To display an image you have to have bytes, sooner or later

- > Are these commands still useful?

If you can display something in a graphics window, these commands can animate it. :-)

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.

Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>
