Hello all.

Has anyone out there found a significant market for IDL/PV-Wave programming? It seems to be a highly specific skill, and, since this was my first long-term professional position, I'm having a little bit of trouble determining my next career move. In addition, I'm limited to the Denver area due to family and financial considerations, although I would be interested in hearing from anyone about their experiences...

Any advice, pointers, or stories?

thanks,

matthew

PS: see additional posting to RSI and Vis Numerics requesting that they consider becoming a resource for those of us who use their products every day. Its value would be extremely high for people like us...
