

---

Subject: Re: which plot windows are opened?

Posted by David Fanning on Sat, 22 Jan 2005 23:42:03 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Andry William writes:

- > Some time ago, I thought I saw somewhere (manuals or this group) how I
- > can now which plot windows are opened. I imagine there should be some
- > array somewhere within IDL which contains a list of all the opened plot
- > windows but I don't seem to find it.
- >
- > Could somebody help?

```
testIndex = 4
Device, Window_State=windowVector
IF windowVector[testIndex] THEN Print, 'Window is open'
```

I wrap the WINDOW_STATE call up into a WindowAvailable function.
I pass it a window index number I'm interested in, it tells me if it is open (1) or not (0).

Cheers,

David

--

David Fanning, Ph.D.

Fanning Software Consulting, Inc.

Coyote's Guide to IDL Programming: <http://www.dfanning.com/>

---

---

Subject: Re: which plot windows are opened?

Posted by war on Sun, 23 Jan 2005 02:01:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

- > testIndex = 4
- > Device, Window_State=windowVector
- > IF windowVector[testIndex] THEN Print, 'Window is open'
- >
- > I wrap the WINDOW_STATE call up into a WindowAvailable function.
- > I pass it a window index number I'm interested in, it tells
- > me if it is open (1) or not (0).

Thanks again Dave.

Andry

---