
Subject: flushing stdout

Posted by Benjamin Hornberger on Thu, 27 Jan 2005 23:07:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi all,

did anybody notice that IDL sometimes doesn't seem to flush stdout (the output log) correctly? I am sending print commands of which I know that they should be appearing in constant time intervals, but actually they appear in chunks of three or so. Even "flush, -1" doesn't help.

This is very annoying when diagnosing errors. Any hints or clues?

Thanks,
Benjamin
