Folks,

I got a call this morning from someone who wanted to register for the IEPA exam. I had to explain to him that I, um, am not fully responsible for all the articles that get placed on my web page. Apparently, Coyote has gotten hold of my password and is writing his OWN articles.

I'm looking into it, but in the meantime please don't believe everything you read. :-)

I do my best to keep this kind of nonsense out of the serious business of IDL programming. Thank you for understanding.

Cheers,

David

P.S. If anyone has called here and left your credit card details with someone with a raspy, howling kind of voice, I'd encourage you to get in touch with the police immediately.
