
Subject: Re: very sorry for multiple amoeba posts.
Posted by Brian Larsen on Thu, 19 Jul 2007 13:36:42 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Jul 18, 3:13 pm, t-rex <Terry.S...@gmail.com> wrote:
> i didn't realise they were being submitted. Infact I still can't see > anything that I submit > to the forum, fumbling in the dark. Has anyone had this experience?

Typically it is just a lag in the usenet group processing and posting of messages, this is not a traditional "forum" as you are probably used to. Happens from time to time.

see: <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Usenet>

Brian

Brian Larsen
Boston University Center for Space Physics

Subject: Re: very sorry for multiple amoeba posts.
Posted by Michael Galloy on Thu, 19 Jul 2007 14:39:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

t-rex wrote:
> i didn't realise they were being submitted. Infact I still can't see
> anything that I submit > to the forum, fumbling in the dark. Has anyone had this experience?
>
> If anyone has any insights on the amoeba question, e-mail terry.suer
> at gmail.com
> thanks!. (latest post is most recent version of code).

Especially if you are using Google Groups there can be quite a delay to see your post. I posted something yesterday and I still don't see it on Google Groups, but I do see it when using Comcast's news server.

Mike

--

www.michaelgalloy.com
