Subject: Re: eclipse ridiculously slow over ssh
Posted by Vince Hradil on Wed, 05 Dec 2007 23:16:55 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Dec 5, 5:14 pm, biophys <biop...@gmail.com> wrote:
> I hate java, that's why i always do "matlab -nojvm". now my swiss army > knife IDL also gets infected by this plague. what a pity~ guess i'll > stay with 6.4 for a while since it is maybe a thousand times more > responsive than 7.0 with X forwarding over ssh.
>
> bp

Thanks for the heads up. If your host is unix might I suggest using:
1- screen
2- emacs -nw
3- idl-pvwave

Subject: Re: eclipse ridiculously slow over ssh
Posted by pgrigis on Wed, 05 Dec 2007 23:26:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, if you are working via ssh, one could argue that the good old command line would be even faster,
no matter which version of IDL you are using ;-)

Ciao,
Paolo

biophys wrote:
> I hate java, that's why i always do "matlab -nojvm". now my swiss army
> knife IDL also gets infected by this plague. what a pity~ guess i'll > stay with 6.4 for a while since it is maybe a thousand times more > responsive than 7.0 with X forwarding over ssh.
>
> bp

Subject: Re: eclipse ridiculously slow over ssh
Posted by Conor on Thu, 06 Dec 2007 16:49:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Dec 5, 6:26 pm, pgri...@gmail.com wrote:
> Well, if you are working via ssh, one could argue
> that the good old command line would be even faster,
> no matter which version of IDL you are using ;-)
>

> Ciao,
> Paolo
>
> biophys wrote:
>> I hate java, that's why i always do "matlab -nojvm". now my swiss army
>> knife IDL also gets infected by this plague. what a pity~ guess i'll >> stay with 6.4 for a while since it is maybe a thousand times more >> responsive than 7.0 with X forwarding over ssh.
>
>> bp

woot! Go command line!