Subject: Setting default window size under X

I know that this is a common question that I should know the answer to (and should be in the manual as well), but I don't (and it's not). Under X, the default window size is 640x512. How can I change this default "permanently". Is there something that I can put in my .Xdefaults file for this.

On a related note, people should post their knowledge of the valid X resource names and what they do. This info should then be added to the FAQ.

Thanks,
