I have been using IDL for about a year and have concluded that it is the best programming language for my work (forest modelling).
However it has two drawbacks: it is slow compared to C or fortran compilers, and distribution of the code requires that the user have a copy of IDL. A compiler, it seems to me, might solve both of these problems. Is one planned?

--
 --------------+-------------------------------+----------- ----------------
Michael A. Lefsky | Dept. Environmental Sciences | mal3p@virginia.EDU
(804) 924-0532 | Clark Hall, Univ. of Virginia | mal3p@virginia.BITNET
(804) 982-2137(fax) | Charlottesville, VA 22903 |
 --------------+-------------------------------+----------- ----------------