Thanks!

By the way, IDLdoc 3.2 is going into beta soon, so sign up for the mailing list (it's listed on the idldoc.idldev.com website) if you are interested in getting your hands on the new release early or want to request new features/report bugs.

The main new features will be:

  * LaTeX output
  * documentation for DLMs
  * ability to control the granularity of the index

Along with some bug fixes.
