Subject: Re: slope_intercept
Posted by Allan Whiteford on Fri, 01 May 2009 10:37:26 GMT

d.poreh@gmail.com wrote:
> Folks
> I have a simple problem: I need to calculate the slope and intercept > of a line that connecting two points [a,b] and [c,d]. I mean I have > two points in a graph and I want slope and intercept of the line that > connect these (two) points.
> Any help?
> Cheers

slope = (b-d)/(a-c) intercept = b - slope * a

Probably :).

Thanks,

Allan

Subject: Re: slope_intercept
Posted by d.poreh on Fri, 01 May 2009 11:00:05 GMT

On May 1, 3:37 am, Allan Whiteford <allan.rem...@phys.remove.strath.ac.remove.uk> wrote:
> d.po...@gmail.com wrote:
>> Folks
>> I have a simple problem: I need to calculate the slope and intercept >> of a line that connecting two points [a,b] and [c,d]. I mean I have >> two points in a graph and I want slope and intercept of the line that >> connect these (two) points.
>> Any help?
>> Cheers
>
> slope = (b-d)/(a-c)
> intercept = b - slope * a
>
> Probably :).
>
> Thanks,
>
> Allan

thank you Allan.

why probably? :)