

---

Subject: IDLDOC 3.2 Index page not as interesting as it could be...

Posted by cgguido on Mon, 15 Jun 2009 22:40:04 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi all,

Not sure how many of you use IDLDOC to document your code. I like it a lot.

I have noticed that when I run it, if I got to the 'Overview' I see a list of directories where my code is stored. If I click on one of those directories I see a list of procedures, with the 1st sentence of the description underneath each one.

Something like:

arraypad.pro

    Pads arrays on each side with zeros or a user supplied value.

However, when I go to the "Index" section, I get mu less interesting info:

arraypad

    routine in arraypad.pro

arraypad.pro

    .pro file in ./ directory

Is there a way to get the "Index" section to also display the 1st sentence of the documentation?

Wouldn't it be more interesting to have this first sentence appear under the procedures in the "categories" page? Am I missing something?

Many thanks!

Gianguido

---