
Subject: Re: compiling and running

Posted by Craig Markwardt on Mon, 03 Aug 2009 04:39:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Aug 2, 10:07 pm, cat <kongfuca...@gmail.com> wrote:

> hi idlers,
>
> When i compile an idl pro file, what happens? does the compiler > produce some result files?
>
> For example,
>
> IDL>.com myRoutine
>
> After i did this, it supposed to produce a file like myRoutine.class > file just as java compiler do.
>
> I didnot find anything here and there, so I think maybe the idl jvm > executes the compiled routines which exists in memory.
>
> is it true?

You are correct. "Compilation" for IDL means compiled from source code into memory. If you really want to, you can use the SAVE procedure to put a copy on disk, but this is not necessary.

Craig
