Folks,

An unrequested "upgrade" to a new domain server broke a lot of my previous software. (Does this remind you of IDL updates that require you to purchase new computers?) I was probably due for some updates anyway, but it is always painful. In any case, I've spent the the past two weeks working 14 hours or so a day to get a new Coyote Store built so I could earn a paltry $24.56 for my efforts. (Don't get me started on the economics of selling IDL information.)

I just chased the last of the known problems down about an hour ago. There are probably others. While I'm on a roll, I'd like to discover all of them. To this end, if you purchase something on the new Coyote Store this month, you can get a 20% discount if you use the coupon code COYOTESTORE. There is not a great deal of "stuff" for sale at the moment, but I have some ideas. If you run into any problems, let me know. I'll work on them immediately. I owe Coyote about a month's worth of beers. ;-)

Cheers,

David
