I used the following code to extract my images as tif files

directory = 'C:\Users\Images'

file_mkdir, directory
```

```
write_tif, directory + '\' + name, tvrd ()
```

I overlaid a grid on the top of the images. When the images exported as tif files the grid was not red any more, it appears in white colour. To keep the colour of the grid I used the cgsnapshot instead

```
directory = 'C:\Users\Images'
```

```
void = cgsnapshot(/tif, filename= directory + '\' +name)
```

But I got the following system error

```
cgsnapshot-->dialog_pickfile:Bad initial filename: C:\Users\
```

Can anyone help with this?

Define the "name" variable.

Cheers,

David

I already defined the "name"

I'm sure you thought you had, but the error message testifies otherwise. :-)
