Does anyone else have problems with the online help showing pages that have "blank" sections - i.e. part of the text for (longish) help pages is simply whitened out?

For example, after starting up the HyperHelp application, browsing forward from the "Overview: Using IDL" page to the "Reporting Problems" page, scrolling down that page, part of the section on "Simplify the Problem" is missing... Exactly what parts are missing depend on the window width, it appears... Often, there is a "half-erased" line showing at the beginning/end of the blank area..

Anybody else see this - or anybody else who does not see anything like this?

My platform is:

{ alpha OSF unix 5.2 Oct 30 1998 }
